BREAKING DOWN REVERE TRADENAMES™

The Revere Tradenames™ datafeed relies on same criteria used in our patented classification system in order to make better comparisons. The criteria used to group companies varies based on sector, industry, and the type of goods or services a company sells.

For instance, in the healthcare industry, drugs and drug candidates are grouped by their current stage of development, indication, side effects, and method of action. In the commodity sectors, Revere Tradenames™ is organized by subsidiary name. In such areas as Consumer Products and Retail, brand names are used. And, for Service companies, tradenames are generally based on business units.
